

Free Workshops

workshops created just for you

American Goldfinch on Apache Plume by Ken Hall

Native Plants for Birds

Local non-profit partner Denver Audubon will take you on a guided virtual tour of some of our dynamic Colorado native plants that support birds, beneficial pollinators, and other wonderful wildlife. Join us for a lively and engaging workshop – plant it and they will come!

Thursday, January 28

5:30 - 6:30pm

Plant Sale

Our native and xeric plant offerings are specifically selected to thrive in our County's weather and soil conditions. Native plants are adapted to our local climate and soil conditions making them the hardiest plants one can buy and the least thirsty, once established.

Check out our seedling trees, perennials, ornamental grasses and seed mixes at DouglasConserves.org/Shop. Plants are competitively priced, sourced from local nurseries for the most robust stock, and proceeds go right back into Douglas County conservation programs.

Thank you for your patronage!

Windbreak Design

This workshop will blow you away! Partners Natural Resource Conservation Service and the Colorado State Forest Service lead this in depth discussion on how to build your windbreak from row spacing to planting. Check out the Windbreak Webpage.

Thursday, February 4

5:30 - 6:30pm

Contact Us to Register!

The Douglas County Conservation District's Mission is helping people help the land by promoting projects through education to further sustainable use of natural resources.

